About The Honorable James E. Clyburn

The Honorable James E. Clyburn’s beginnings in Sumter, South Carolina, as the eldest son of an activist, fundamentalist minister and an independent, civic-minded beautician, grounded him securely in family, faith and public service. In the decades since, he has become a trailblazer and leader, serving as a schoolteacher before moving into elected office and serving in roles including Chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, Vice Chairman, and later Chairman, of the House Democratic Caucus.

Congressman Clyburn has championed rural and economic development with many of his initiatives becoming law. His 10-20-30 federal funding formula was included in four sections of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act and has been expanded to 18 accounts in recent years. He is the third-ranking Democrat in the United States House of Representatives, and the highest-ranking African-American official in Congress.

His passion for historic preservation and restoration programs has led to advocacy and action, restoring scores of historic buildings and sites on the campuses of historically Black colleges and universities. His legislation created the South Carolina National Heritage Corridor and the Gullah/Geechee Cultural Heritage Corridor, elevated the Congaree National Monument to a National Park, and established the Reconstruction Era National Monument in South Carolina's Lowcountry.

Congressman Clyburn previously served as Majority Whip (2007-2011) and as Assistant Democratic Leader (2011-2019). Clyburn is currently the Majority Whip for the 117th Congress, Chairman of the House Select subcommittee on the COVID-19 crisis, and Chairman of the Rural Broadband Task Force and Democratic Faith Working Group.
